NEWS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

During the excessive cold weather many Paris theatres closed their doors.

During last month seven "Opera Houses" were burned in Texas. They were built of pine boards.

Switzerland in this winter almost one mountain of snow; trains, steam-boats, and telegraphs have been in a chronic state of interruption.

A pile of straw was left under a third-story window of the Louisville House of Refuge, and seven young girls escaped by jumping down to it.

In a lawsuit at Nashville, Ind., involving a question of paternity, a baby was put in evidence, in order to show its resemblance to the alleged father.

Boston has begun distributing soup to her poor from six depots, where fifty gallon kettles are kept full of what is thought to be a remarkably good article for public soup.

"Gulliver's travels" have been dramatized for the London Gaiety. Swift wrote Brobdingnag, but a printer's blunder made it Broldingnag, and so it has remained to this day.

London now has, and apparently not before it was needed, a Society for preventing Street Accidents and Dangerous Driving, which, for the week ending Dec. 20, reported two killed and forty-five injured from this cause.

A runner at Allegheny, Pa., suspected his barkeeper of pilfering; and got into the ice box, intending to keep a watch through a small spigot hole. He gained the desired information, but soon found himself suffocating. When taken out he was nearly dead.

A submarine diver was in the Grant procession at Philadelphia. He stood on a platform wagon, wearing his huge brass helmet, rubber suit, and heavy laden plates. The weight was very burdensome in the air, though just the thing for water, and he has since died from the effects of it.

The tar got cold and hard while the mob were getting ready to punish James Dayton, at Warren, R. I. They were out of doors on a cold night, and no one had a match to light a fresh fire under the kettle. So they rolled the naked man in the snow until he was chilled almost to death, and let the outrage go at that.

Mori Arinori is a Japanese who has received an American education. Kinji Horon, a newspaper published at the capital of Japan, assailed him as "a bigot of Western ideas," "a lover of strange things," and "a reader of the Bible." His chief offense in the eyes of the Japanese editor, however, is that just before starting as Minister to England he changed the spelling of Moto to Mary.

Two wealthy and respected young men of Memphis agreed to settle their dispute by duel with fists. The meeting was in a ring, with seconds and a referee, and the rules of prize fighting. There were seven rounds, each ending with the same fellow being knocked down; but finally a blow broke his antagonist's thumb, ending the fight with a nominal victory for the whipped pugilist, for the other would not come to time.

Reuben Boyce, a Texas stage robber, was in jail at Austin. His wife rode to the prison on a racehorse, and asked if she could take a basket of provisions into her husband's cell. Permission was given. The jailer, when he thought her visit had lasted long enough, opened the cell door and ordered her out. Boyce came instead, brandishing a revolver that had been carried to him in the basket, and made his way to the fast horse and rode away.

A Cannibal Witch in India.

From the Standard. One of the most interesting passages in Mr. Bell's "Jungle Life in India" is that which treats of certain witches, or enchanters. The English have passed a law forbidding the killing of persons of this profession, on pain of death to the executioner. Nevertheless, a number of cattle having disappeared in a certain village, it was opined that they had been destroyed by the black art, and incantations were resorted to for the discovery of the offender. The lot fell upon an elderly female, who, on being charged with the crime, calmly and unhesitatingly confessed that she had "devoured" the animals in question. The owner of the latter, however, generously consented to forgive her, and here the matter should have ended.

But shortly afterward, the son of this same merciful personage died, and the witch proved to have had stomach for him likewise, though she was conscientious enough to add that she had been assisted at the feast by two other ladies, whose names she mentioned. The latter made no bones about admitting their complicity, and the injured master and cattle owner then informed them that he should really be compelled to cut off their heads—an action which he accordingly performed, the ladies offering no expostulation whatever.

This phase of the episode having been finished, to the apparent satisfaction of all concerned, the avenger placed himself in the hands of the English authorities, who, as in duty bound, relieved him of existence.

CLARKE AND THE UNION.

Thomas L. Clark, the V. & T. railroad engineer, has earned an enviable reputation for courage and nerve. When the Mechanics' Union of Virginia threatened his life last summer, he brought his engine into the station at Virginia in the face of a thousand men, few of whom expected to see him leave alive. His courage is probably what saved him on that occasion. The men who were ready to kill him could not but admire his intrepidity and they let him go unharmed. MANHOU & TITZER

The Mechanics' Union officers are unwilling to be thought responsible for the recent dastardly outrage in Virginia. But it cannot be doubted that the murderous assault was made by Union men, and because Clark had bravely that organization.

Clark's persistence in thrusting his head into the lion's mouth appears to some men to be rash, reckless almost foolhardy. But all men and women admire bravery, and Clarke's courageous stand has made for him thousands of friends whom he has never seen.

NO DISCRIMINATION.

A correspondent writing to the Record-Union says:

"I have just been reading your article of December 10, 1878, on railroad regulation, which leads me to say something on the subject. The question arises, upon what principle can the State regulate the fares and freights? I can only see that it is upon exact justice to all. How can the State say that one man shall pay $1 and another $20 for a ride on the same road simply because he lives further away? Does not the Government convey a letter 3,000 miles for the same it conveys it one mile? Do not the street cars in the city, carry the whole length of the city for the same as one block? Does not the Government charge the same for land in the remote places, and for poor land, as it does for good land near a market? Also the State taxes all property at the same rate, according to value. Upon this principle the State, if it has the right or power to regulate fares and freights, should do it so that every man who got on a through line should pay the same, and every ton of freight should pay the same, making no difference at what point it was laid off. This would equalize the value of property, make the poor man's land, the same value far away as the man's who was lucky enough to get land nearer a market, for his grain would fetch the same, and his groceries would cost no more. Under such a system, all the vacant land would be improved, and the country villages would be large cities. The city would not be overrun with a surplus population, the whole country would be sending their surplus to market all upon equality. The theory is very simple and just. Let the State regulate the fares and freights upon a fair basis, that would pay the company a good profit and guarantee a certain rate of interest. The increase in revenue and transportation in five years would pay five or ten-fold to the State, even if she had to make up interest to the roads. But she would not. The roads would make more money, and her lands would come into market, and all be occupied, with a large increase of value. I throw this out for a hint to get you and the public thinking on the right side of the question."

GRANT AND THE DIVER.

In the Grant pageant at Philadelphia a diver stood for hours, dressed and weighted as if about to descend into the sea. The strain upon him proved too much for his strength; he fell ill, and his death died.

There is a certain resemblance between this diver and Grant himself.

Loaded with honors and heaped with adulation, Grant has displayed himself too long before the people. Borne down beneath the weight of distinction he was not fitted to sustain, he is rapidly sinking to his political grave.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In the vicinity of Berkeley last Sunday, a young Oaklander was hunting, and seeing an object moving behind a bush, he jumped to the conclusion that it was a wildcat, and fired his gun. It proved to be a young lady, who, with a little girl, was shot and dangerously injured. With hurried steps learned to look before they shoot!

Lawsuits are at a standstill. She owes only $546.45, which she proposes to pay at maturity, July 1, 1881.

The mails are now carried to and from Mammoth City on snow shoes. The V. & T. Company have 18,000 redwood trees at the Spondee House, for the new Bridge railroad. W. worth extra.

The Red Bluff merchants close up at the end of the City Hall bell, and all the young business men home.

Chances are no longer to be employed in any manner on Nevada county roads or in any railway connection, as interpreted.

A Calaveras Chinaman hanged himself on the 15th because he thought from the saying of the sun that the world had come to an end.

Annie Boggs, a young stock raiser of Waco, Texas, was found dead about two weeks ago while herding her flock near the Colorado River.

Two steel cables, each to be 5,700 in length, are being manufactured in England for the Yellow Jacket shaft. These will be the longest cables ever brought to the Comstock.

Great destruction of timber in all parts of Oregon by the recent storm. In Northern Marion, hundreds upon thousands of the giants of the forest now lie uprooted and twisted. Many miles of fencing were torn down.

A Marysville boy stood on a number of logs and tried to sit in a public doorway. "Slewed" persons thought it was theirs, and carried it with them the length of the string. They then suddenly dropped it without once looking back or stopping to pick it up again.

Miss Anderson of Anderson, Wis., received from her father a check for $20. She raised the figure to $25, spent the money for charity, and said when arrested: "I didn't think there was any harm in doing as I pleased with my own money."

Commercial Sheet United States $200, the amount of capital invested in the various theatrical companies, only seven resident stock companies.

NEWS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

An aged woman at Calumet, Mich., fell down and died on seeing some men bring home the body of her grandson, who had been killed by an accident.

James O'Brien is forty-one years old, has passed twenty-two years in Pennsylvania prisons, and has just been sentenced to ten more, all for robberies.

A sacrificial service by Ira Stewart, a religious fanatic at Castle Grove, Iowa, was interrupted just in time to save his little daughter.

The pastor of St. Boniface Catholic church at Greenacres, Ind., publicly reproved and discharged his choir because they had perpetrated a fraud in the raffling of a piano a few days ago.

Rumsellers frequently become temperance apostles, but Nelson J. Lee, after conducting temperance revivals throughout Pennsylvania for several years, lately opened a barroom at Erie, and is doing a thriving business. He announces a lecture on the subject of his change of conduct.

A beautiful Circassian girl, an educated pig and a Punch and Judy show were the attractions of the Great American and European Traveling Museum, which was lately at Lancaster, Pa. An alderman accidentally kissed the Circassian, whereupon her husband, who saw the indignity from behind the Punch and Judy curtain, came out and whipped the alderman terribly.

A dwarf donkey's love of beer is a source of revenue to an Indianapolis saloon keeper. The little beast stands or lies by the stove, ready to trot up to the bar and drink as often as invited. He usually gets pretty drunk before the night's dissipations are over, and in the morning, probably in consequence of a headache, bites and kicks at everybody who comes near.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD.

When we say we believe, we have evidence to prove that Shiloh's Consumption Cure is decidedly the best Lung Medicine made, in as much as it will cure a common or Chronic Cough in one-half the time and relieve Asthma, Bronchitis, whooping cough, croup, and show more cases of consumption cured than all others. It will cure where they fail, it is pleasant to take, harmless to the youngest child, and we guarantee what we say—Price, 10cts. 50cts and $1.00.
